The Department of Physical Therapy at Western Carolina University (WCU) invites applications for three nine-month tenure-track or fixed-term positions at the assistant, associate, or professor level. Our department is experiencing multiple retirements as well as planned growth to WCU's instructional site in Asheville, NC. The positions will begin in August 2018. Teaching responsibilities include instruction of entry-level DPT students according to candidate's areas of specialization. Additional responsibilities will include scholarly activity, service internal and external to the university, and student advising.

Minimum Qualifications:

Education

Doctorate from accredited institution

Licensure

License to practice physical therapy in the state of North Carolina at the time of employment for candidates teaching physical therapy clinical content

Experience

Minimum of three years of clinical experience in physical therapy practice, or three years teaching in higher education in a physical therapy program or a related discipline as appropriate

Preferred Qualifications:

Academic doctorate (PhD, DSc, ScD, or EdD) and DPT with ABPTS specialty certification or advanced education/training

Ability to teach in two or more of the following content/practice areas: human anatomy and physiology, pathophysiology, professional development, motor control, research methods and statistics, physical agents, pharmacology, and cardiopulmonary, musculoskeletal, neurological, and pediatric physical therapy

Evidence of strong teaching skills and use of instructional technology

Commitment to community engagement through teaching, service, and scholarship

Record of scholarship and/or a clear plan for a future scholarly agenda

Description:

The physical therapy program fosters a student-centered learning environment where faculty highly value interprofessional teamwork and a dynamic, positive work environment. Excellent opportunities are available for collaborative teaching, service, and research with on-campus programs and regional healthcare organizations. Extensive support is available for faculty development. Salary and rank are commensurate with academic qualifications and experience.

The program is housed in the new Health and Human Sciences Building with custom designed laboratories and excellent instructional technology resources. New facilities and services include a recently updated human movement science laboratory, a primary care clinic, an outpatient physical therapy clinic, a student-run pro bono physical therapy clinic, a collaborative venture with a local farmworker health program, and an interprofessional Balance and Fall Prevention Clinic. WCU embraces its role as a community-engaged university designated by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and has adopted the Boyer Model of Scholarship to support its commitment to integrated learning and the scholarship of engagement.

WCU is a regional comprehensive university within The University of North Carolina system. The main campus is located in Cullowhee, a scenic rural valley between the Blue Ridge and the Smokey Mountains offering a mountain lifestyle with abundant opportunities for artisans and outdoor enthusiasts. WCU also has several graduate programs, to include the planned physical therapy expansion, housed at an instructional site 50 miles away in Asheville, NC, well-known for its rich cultural vibrancy. Larger metropolitan cities are accessible with Atlanta, GA 2 ½ hours to the south and Charlotte, NC 3 hours to the east.

Please apply online at jobs.wcu.edu/postings/7763 and include a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and contact information for three references. If you have questions or seek additional information, contact John Carzoli, PT, DPT, OCS, Search Committee Chair, Department of Physical Therapy, 230 Health and Human Sciences Building, Western Carolina University, Cullowhee, NC 28723.
