The Doctor of Physical Therapy Program at Bellarmine University invites applications for a 12-month tenure-track faculty position at the Assistant Professor or Associate Professor level. This new position will join a department of 16 dynamic core faculty. The core faculty collectively holds nine ABPTS specialization certifications in six certification areas. The successful candidate will value the University's Catholic identity and tradition, and will support the University's vision and mission, commitment to service and hospitality, and the intellectual, ethical and moral development of all students.

We are seeking innovative professionals with expertise in the areas of musculoskeletal physical therapy, human movement/biomechanics, and medical screening/differential diagnosis. Candidates with foundational physical therapy skills and other areas of established expertise that complement the current faculty will be considered.

The DPT Program is proud of their state-of-the-art facilities and extensive curricular integrated service-learning activities and international experiences. The Program is located in a collaborative and collegial environment and is part of the School of Movement and Rehabilitation Sciences in the College of Health Profession. The DPT Program is CAPTE accredited (thru 2024) and receives significant community and administrative support. Additional unique features of the DPT Program include a state of the art human gross anatomy laboratory, an externally funded physical therapy leadership development program, endowed on- and off-campus service-learning clinics, and two collaborative ABPTRFE accredited residency programs (Neurological and Geriatric). These residency programs will continue to be an instrumental component in Louisville emerging as the Aging Care Capital.

Description:

At a minimum, the candidate should possess:

An earned academic doctorate (PhD, EdD, DHS, DSc), and/or DPT with ABPTS certification.

Candidate must be licensed in a United States jurisdiction as a physical therapist.

Evidence of peer-reviewed scholarship, at a minimum invited presentations such as poster or platform at professional conferences. Publications in peer-reviewed journals, authorship of books or chapters, and grant activity will be considered as higher forms of peer-reviewed scholarship.

Experience teaching in an academic environment, at a minimum as adjunct faculty. Higher consideration may be given to those with previous full-time faculty experience.

Experience mentoring students in research, either formally or informally.

Applications are being accepted now and review will continue until the position is filled. Starting date is negotiable. Qualified applicants may apply by clicking the apply button, and should submit a cover letter, narrative statement of teaching philosophy, current C.V., and provide names of three professional references.
