The University of Southern California's Division of Biokinesiology and Physical Therapy has a strong reputation for excellence in physical therapy education. We invite applications for a part-time, non-exempt, clinical faculty positions to teach in our entry level DPT program. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and qualifications. Faculty hired at 50% time are benefits eligible.

Areas of teaching most desired are as course director of two courses in the residential version of the program: Electrophysiology (1 unit lab course, Spring Semester 2019), and Therapeutic Application of Physical Agents (2 units, Summer Session (May-June), 2019). The course director is responsible for planning, implementing, and assessing the learning outcomes of the course. Ideal candidates for this position will have clinical and teaching expertise in these content areas, but applicants with expertise in other areas of instruction will be considered.

Description: In addition, positions are open for the course lead in the hybrid on-line/on-campus program. Responsibilities include working with the course director to translate and implement the Electrophysiology and Physical Agents courses into the hybrid format.

Positions are also open for instructors in the therapeutic exercise, orthopedic patient management and neurologic patient management courses. Ideal candidates for these positions will have clinical and teaching expertise in neurologic or orthopedic rehabilitation, but applicants with expertise in other areas of instruction will be considered.
