Faculty Opportunity: Director of Educational Innovation

Division of Physical Therapy, Department of Rehabilitation Medicine

The Division of Physical Therapy, Department of Rehabilitation Medicine at the University of Minnesota is inviting applicants for a full-time, 12 month, non-tenure track faculty Associate Professor to serve as a "Director of Educational Innovation". The rank upon hire will be modified commensurate with experience (Assistant through Full Professor).

Ideal candidates will have an established record of academic and professional leadership, a history of scholarly productivity, and a passion for educational development and innovation including academic/clinical partnerships, residency and fellowship development, advanced practice education, and innovative educational delivery models. Candidates should have a demonstrated capacity for collaboration across the academic setting, and will play a key role in partnering with the Director of Clinical Education to advance clinical education models for our DPT students. Successful candidates will engage in teaching, research, service, and optionally clinical practice, consistent with their expertise and interests.

The position requires a physical therapy degree with eligibility for licensure in Minnesota, and an earned academic doctorate, or a DPT degree and willingness to pursue an academic doctorate. Preference will be given to applicants with prior academic and administrative or program development experience, prior history of funded educational research, a commitment to innovation, and strong interpersonal skills. We are committed to supporting an inclusive community and holistically asses the qualifications of each applicant.

Description:

The Division of Physical Therapy at the University of Minnesota is an academic unit with 18 faculty lines and a 75-year history within the School of Medicine. With regard to quality graduates, scientific productivity, and professional leadership, the University of Minnesota upholds a strong national reputation. Degree programs include a DPT, and DPT/PhD joint degree. The Division enjoys close integration with a PhD/MS in Rehabilitation Science educational curriculum, and houses an accredited Geriatric Clinical Residency with opportunities for expansion into other advanced residencies and fellowships. As a major public institution, the University of Minnesota has substantial opportunity for collaborative work across the University, in the local community, and with national and international institutions. Strong relationships exist with community partners with room for advancement.

Applications are due on February 15, 2018 for initial review, although the search will remain open until the position is filled. An application must include: (1) a cover letter, including the names and contact information for three references, (2) curriculum vitae, and (3) a single document that contains statements of the applicant's vision for the position.
