Applications are invited from physical therapists interested in joining a dynamic Faculty of an established physical therapist education program to teach an entry-level Doctor of Physical Therapy degree curriculum in Brooklyn, NY. The candidate is required to have New York State Physical Therapist licensure and at least five years' clinical experience as a physical therapist. The candidate should have a strong neuromuscular PT background (NCS or advanced degree in Motor Control/Motor Learning preferred) with a research doctoral degree (PhD, EdD or DSc). Also required are strong organizational, collaborative, written and interpersonal skills.

The position is a 12-month, tenure-line, full-time, 1.0 FTE position. It involves teaching in Neuromuscular PT track and other required curricula according to the faculty member's content expertise. Other responsibilities for the position include involvement in scholarly activities, including research; participation in program activities including student recruitment, selection and advisement; mentorship of student capstone projects; curriculum revision and program evaluation; and rendering of professional service to the program, university, and the community.

Review of applications will commence immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Applicants should submit a letter of intent and curriculum vitae with three professional references to:
