Bangor, Maine is a small city located an hour from Acadia National Park. Lakes, hiking, biking, kayaking, and skiing are readily accessible. Bangor is surrounded by the best that Maine has to offer. Because of its central location within the state, Bangor is the gateway to the pristine Northern Maine wilderness, the rock-bound coast, and lush, green agricultural lands. Go beyond Bangor's borders in any direction and you'll experience the beauty of The Maine Highlands. North to Maine's highest peak, Katahdin, in Baxter State Park; south to the rich farm lands of the Southern Piscataquis region; northwest to Maine's largest lake, Moosehead, in Greenville; and east to the coast, where you can catch the sunrise from atop Cadillac Mountain in Acadia National Park.

With over a dozen craft breweries in our region, Greater Bangor has become a craft beer destination. The locations of our breweries are just as varied. Some are located right in the heart of downtown Bangor or Brewer, while others are situated close to the mountains, near the ocean or alongside a river.
